

What is GivePulse?

GivePulse is a powerful web-based software system designed to support service learning and community engagement efforts on college campuses. The ISU GivePulse network is coordinated through the ISU Translational Research Network (U-TuRN) and is available campus-wide with your ISU email address (single sign-on)

Key Features for Faculty

- Manage course-based service-learning activities
- Post and coordinate group activities
- Connect with community partners
- Conduct surveys and track impacts

Want to Engage?

If you want to get more involved in community engagement work, consider joining the network of 'Engaged Scholars' affiliated with the ISU Translational Research Network (U-TuRN). The network is open to any faculty, staff or student interested in campus community partnerships and engaged scholarship.

Getting Started

GivePulse is free for any ISU faculty, staff, or student. Login through the ISU GivePulse page or download the app to get started. Support and training resources are available through a network of community-engaged scholars and students affiliated with U-TuRN. Contact us through channels below to learn more or to get started with GivePulse.